The fact that all tickets are to be printed "FOR the convention," should be a sufficient warning to the people that "there's a cat in the meal tub." The effort to make it a party issue shows to what extent the promoters of the scheme would go in order to be burdened with all the schemes that politicians concoct. Virginia will soon have a very large party of independent voters, who will acknowledge allegiance to no party. If our constitution requires amendments, they can be made in a much cheaper way than by calling a convention composed of men who determine their own pay, and the length of the sessions and whose actions cannot be set aside by any court. It is the duty of every Virginian who desires to protect his mterests to watch closely this Constitutional Convention scheme, to learn how to vote against it and then exercise his right of self protection.
